Paris Visited by Destructive Fire

The work shop of the Paris Manufacturing Company, on Cypress street, burned Sunday morning at 2:30 o'clock, entailing a loss of near $7,000. The fire was first discovered by Mrs. Wilcox, who lives about 200 yards from the building, by the bright light in her room from the flames. She at once notified Mr. J. Hooker Stivers, senior member of the fire company, who also lives near the plant. Mr. Stivers was a little while upon the scene using a private line of hose kept on hand for emergencies before the Fire Department arrived after the long run. The work shop, a building, 60 feet long, was too large to attempt to save and all energies were directed to saving the main plant which contained all of the expensive machinery of the planing mill. Their efforts were successful in this regard.

Over a dozen carpenters and machinists lost all their tools in the fire, approximately $300 in value. One hundred and fifty comb bars, belonging to farmers throughout the county, which had been redressed and made ready for the bluegrass seed harvest, valued at $3,000, were destroyed in addition to window and door frames for new Baptist church, and large stock of hardware, paints, undressed lumber, delivery wagons belonging to W. J. Murphy, and other articles to numerous to mention.

The building was valued at $1,500, $500 insurance. It is not known the amount carried on stock.

Two Centralizers.

As Mr. Roosevelt's term draws to a close he sees Mr. Harriman, whom he classed with himself as a "practical man," in partial or complete control of ten great railway systems, aggregating 77,000 miles or more than one-third of the total railway mileage of the United States. That Mr. Harriman's grip on the railways of the country has been strengthened during the seven years of the Roosevelt Administration is a plain fact of history. He secured a ruling hand in the Erie only last spring. The Roosevelt panic enabled him the preceding fall to capture the Georgia Central. Now he is one of the powerful influences in the New York Central.

While Mr. Roosevelt aimed at the plan of centralizing in the executive by act of Congress the control of all of the railroads in the United States, Mr. Harriman has actually by his private operations succeeding in centralizing in himself the control of one third of them. Mr. Roosevelt has had his Railroad Rate bill placed in the statute books, and Mr. Harriman without the least interference has recently raised railway rates to suit himself on his transcontinental lines. The people of California protest that lines built for competition are under a single control; they protest against the recent rise in rates on the Harriman lines; and they are. Nothing is done.

It has been a favorite doctrine of Mr. Roosevelt's that his methods of centralization offered the only way to combat socialism. And Socialists find only cause for satisfaction that the consolidation of railroad systems under Mr. Harriman's management has been making rapid progress during the days of Roosevelt railroad reform. Where consolidation of an individual is accomplished they anticipate that state ownership will be made easier if not indeed imperative.

At present Mr. Harriman is pursuing his schemes undisturbed and no really responsible man has been sent to jail. On the other hand, Mr. Roosevelt prepares to quit office by asking Congress for larger powers and by demanding that the Sherman Anti-Trust act be emasculated. As it is, the law not having been enforced, Mr. Harriman should feel devoutly grateful for the success of his plans.

Safeguards of the Sea.

The St. Louis arrives in port rudderless and limping, only a little after an accident which at a time recent in the history of sea travel would have crippled any ship.

Now, thanks to mechanical safeguards at sea, the blow which would have once have left the liner helpless occasions only an inconsiderable delay. The news flashed ashore to relieve anxiety and the ship proceeds over her accustomed route with only a reduction of headway, steering by her twin screws. What twenty years ago would have been the occasion of a lamentable report is now a passing incident of navigation, important mainly for the proof it adds to that already furnished within a fortnight of the progress made in rendering ocean voyaging secure.

Time was, and not long ago, when an Atlantic liner mortally injured by collision as the Republic was would have floundered to quickly to permit of rescues. The vessel dealing the blow would in general probability have followed her to the bottom. Instead, the Florida, her nose smashed and her timbers strained, but still seaworthy, reaches port under her own steam.

In the increased size and strength of construction of the modern liner, in her double engines and twin propellers, her longitudinal and transverse bulkheads, in the protective device of the wireless telegraph, the system of submarine signal and the delicate thermometric apparatus indicating the proximity of icebergs, passengers have a guarantee of security at sea which has almost dissipated the terrors of the deep.

A Growing Sentiment.

There is a rapidly growing sentiment all over the country in favor of beautifying school grounds. Where it has been done with any regard to taste and system the results have most satisfactory. There is everything to be said in its favor. There is no merit, quite the reverse, in having dilapidated buildings and ground covered with tall grass and weeds. The effect of such a condition upon the children or district is anything but good. That being so it naturally follows that when this condition is changed so that the grounds and buildings are pleasing to the eye by reason of their neat and attractive appearance a justifiable pride is aroused and with it many other good things. Some leadership and ambition, needed amount of labor and a small outlay of money are sufficient with good taste to turn almost any eye sore into that which is pleasing and beneficial.

Infamous Traffic.

Encouraging blows have recently been struck at the iniquitous white slave trade in Chicago and other cities. It is impossible to conceive of any infamy greater than that of corrupting the virtue of young girls and dragging them down to lasting ruin. Yet is a trade out of which infamous men and women have grown rich. The heavy fines and prison sentences imposed on some of the worst traffickers in human souls is likely to have a deterrent influence upon others like-minded.

Can This Be True?

If a woman admits to herself that she looks pretty well in a new gown she will not admit it to the other women. If they compliment her dress, she will look surprised and say: "Oh, do you like it? It is just a common everyday dress."—Atchison Globe.

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as a savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with overwork. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach. Increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, dependent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach perhaps nausea, or "rising" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, you will find relief by more promptly or firmly using more liberally than Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, epidemic cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret medicine of known composition.

THE THIEVES OF JAPAN

Ingenious Rascals, Among the Cleverest in the World.

ONE OF THEIR FOXY TRICKS.

The Method by Which They Steal the Shoes Off the Women's Feet in the Public Streets—How a Miser's Money Chest Was Bared and Looted.

An Englishman entered a first class car of one of the railroad trains that run between Tokyo and Yokohama. He was a little red in the face and apparently ruffled in temper. He had just discovered that his pocket had been picked in the station, and he exclaimed bitterly against thieves in general and Japanese thieves in particular.

An American who had been engaged in Yokohama for a number of years noticed the Englishman's quandary. Turning round to me, he said: "Our English friend seems a bit excited. If he growls at having his pocket picked, what would he say if he had the shoes stolen off his feet?"

"That is clearly an impossibility," I laughed.

"I don't know about that," he returned. "It may not happen with our western style of shoes, button and lace; but, all the same, I have heard and I know it to be a fact that the sandals of Japanese have been stolen off their feet."

"Well, how is it done?" I asked. "Very simply," he answered. "Suppose a Japanese woman who has a particularly fine pair of lacquered clogs is one of a great crowd that is watching a passing procession or a religious celebration of priests in front of a temple. Along comes an expert pickpocket—or pickfoot, I don't know which you want to call him. His keen eyes, fastened on the ground, discover those desirable clogs. Thereupon he makes up his mind that he wants them."

"The first thing she knows the owner of the clogs feels an unpleasant sensation in her left foot. Naturally she wants to stop it, and quite mechanically and almost absently she slips her right foot out of its clog and begins to scratch that uncomfortable spot in her left foot with her toes. She feels relieved. Forgetting all about the incident, she becomes absorbed in the spectacle again. Soon the irritation crosses over to a similar spot in her right foot. Absently, once more, she slides her left foot out of its clog and begins to soothe the troublesome spot with her toes."

"The thief was responsible for the irritation and walked off with the clogs," I said.

"Certainly. The rascal caused the trouble with a bit of straw or wire," he returned.

"But one would think that the moment the foot of the victim touched the ground its clog would be missed and the thief would run the chance of being caught before the second could be stolen."

"Oh, that is one of the cleverest parts of the trick," explained my friend. "The thief comes supplied with a pair of cheap wooden clogs costing but a few sen, and the owner of the lacquered footgear goes away with them and never notices the difference, at least not until it is too late to profit from the knowledge."

"Are Japanese thieves so very clever, then?" I asked.

"Oh, very!" he returned. "Some time ago I heard of one of them who used to carry a handful of watch rings to fit into the stems of all sorts of watches that he might come by dishonestly. Once he lifted a watch in a train, and the owner, missing it, but not knowing who the thief was, set up a shout and had a policeman summoned. The police, to satisfy the victim, insisted that every one in the train show his watch. When the turn of the thief came he drew out of his pocket the stolen timepiece, and its original possessor, not recognizing it on account of the changed ring, missed an easy chance to regain his property."

"It was the same fellow, I believe," he continued, "who managed by the expenditure of a little money to have himself enrolled under different names in the various lists of different towns. When arrested he gave one of these various names to the authorities. The police, on looking up the record of the name given, were unable to find any black marks against it. Thus he always managed to escape with a light punishment for his first offense, committed I don't know how many times."

"But I don't know that any of these fellows were as clever as another thief I heard about. You know many of the Japanese sleep on a sort of bed made up on the floor, called a futon. Well, an old Japanese miser kept his money in the house, concealed in a small chest of drawers. In the daytime he never took his eyes off his treasure, and at night he had his futon pushed tightly against it, so no robber could get at his money without awakening him."

"For a long time a gang of thieves had been puzzling their brains to find a way of stealing the hoard without being detected. Well, on a certain night, one of them entered the house and gently, little by little, pulled the bed on which the miser lay away from the chest of drawers. Then he quickly emptied the drawers of their currency, shoved the bed back to its original position and made his escape."

"Several days passed before the unfortunate miser detected his loss."—Chicago News.

A Narrow Escape.

One night last week the handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Tarr, near town, had a narrow escape from destruction by fire. The fire originated under the hearthstone in the family sitting room. Fortunately smoke was noticed coming through the floor, and Mr. Tarr, with the assistance of the servants, cut holes in the floor and tore out the mantel and extinguished the fire, which had made considerable headway. Had the fire not been discovered before the family retired it is probable the house would have been consumed.

The residence of Mrs. J. T. Talbott, on the Cynthia pike, five miles west of Millersburg, was burned Saturday afternoon about 2 o'clock. The fire originated from defective flue. By the use of the telephone neighbors and friends arrived on the scene in time to save most of the furniture. If a ladder could have been secured when the fire was first discovered a few buckets of water would have saved the house. It was considered one of the best constructed frame residences in county. Insurance on house, $1,200 and $500 on the furniture in the Hurst Home Company.

Bourbon Land Brings $170 Per Acre.

Thirty-three acres of land were sold by Auctioneer M. F. Kenney, for Master Commissioner Russell Mann, at the court house door at 11 o'clock Saturday morning to John W. Allison for $17 per acre. The tract which was the subject of spirited bidding between Mr. Allison and Wm. Whaley, lies on the Russell Cave pike. Mr. Allison owns land on both sides, while Mr. Whaley owns a farm in the rear. If the former secured the tract it united his two farms, while if the latter was the successful bidder it gave him an outlet to the pike. Mr. Allison started the bidding at $60 per acre, Ed. Blake advancing the price to $65. Mr. Whaley then entered the fight for possession by bidding $100. The price rapidly rose till the tract of land was knocked down to Mr. Allison at the price above stated. The land is in grass. Auctioneer Kenney also sold for the Commissioner, at same time and place, 90 acres of land near Jacksonville, belonging to Abram Keller's heirs, to Mrs. J. N. Ammerman, of Cynthia, for $72.50 per acre.

Fiscal Court Meets.

The Bourbon Fiscal Court which convened Friday morning at the court house at 10 o'clock had a busy day in the hearing of reports and allowing of claims. The report showed claims due contractors for finished work, aggregating $718.58 for December and $126.75 for January. BARCALO BEDS

DO NOT COME APART OR BREAK DOWN

If you want a bed that will last, that will always be solid and substantial, look to these points:
The corners or couplings—the castings on the posts—are what hold the bed "up," hold it together.
In Barcalo Beds, these castings are of unbreakable malleable iron. So they never break or give way. All connections are so solid that your bed can never come apart, never get shaky or rickety.

And so with all parts. The tubing in the pillars or posts, the cross-pieces, the rods and supports, all are strong and substantial. The parts which hold the casters are put in solidly, so they never get loose, never fall out.

In most other beds, the parts where the strain comes soon weaken.

Then, the finish of Barcalo Beds, whether brass or enamel, will not crack or peel. It is most durable because it is heavy-ply.

We have a complete line of Barcalo Beds, both brass and enamel, and in all styles and designs.

Microscopic Writing.

A remarkable machine made by a lately deceased member of the Royal Microscopical society for writing with a diamond seems to have been broken up by its inventor. A specimen of its work is the Lord's prayer of 227 letters, written in the 1,237,000 of a square inch, which is at the rate of 53,880,000 letters or 15 complete Bibles, to a single square inch. To decipher the writing it is necessary to use a 1-12-inch objective, which is the high power lens physicians employ for studying the most minute bacteria.

Roses as Rent.

An interesting feature of the distribution of prizes at St. Olave's Grammar school, Bermondsey, was the payment of the "rent" of a freehold field which was leased in 1656 to trustees for the benefit of the poor of the parish. The lease was "for a term of 500 years, at the yearly rent of a red rose, payable at midsummer if lawfully demanded." The representatives of the trustees paid the rent with a bouquet of red roses which was handed to the warden of the school.—London Mail.

A Sweet Nature Fake.

Falling to bite sugar from several lumps, some marked bees under observation by Gaston Bonnier, a French naturalist, flew away, returning in an hour or two with two other workers, after first visiting a fountain. An element of humor characterized one of Mr. Spencer's Indian experiences. One day, after "ng a parachute descent, his balloon, traveling on, came down among some fisherfolk, who promptly unpicked the net to use for fishing lines, and cut up the balloon itself to make waterproof clothing!

There are 49 principal governments in the world. Of these, six are absolute monarchies, 19 are limited monarchies and 24 are republics. Besides these there are a few unimportant despotisms of Central Africa and some independent states.

Aged Eggs.

Judging by the number of foreign eggs sold, the British public is not so punctilious in the matter of freshness as is supposed. Many of the "box" eggs sold are, it is safe to assume, eaten when six weeks old.—Grocers' Journal.

'Twas a Glorious Victory.

There's rejoicing in Fedora, Tenn. A man's life has been saved, and now Dr. King's New Discovery is the talk of the town for curing C. V. Pepper of deadly lung hemorrhages. "I could not work nor get about," he writes, "and the doctors did me no good, but, after using Dr. King's New Discovery three weeks, I feel like a new man and can do good work again." For weak, sore or diseased lungs, Coughs or Colds, Hemorrhages, Hay fever, LaGrippe, Asthma or any Bronchial affection it stands unrivaled. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Sold and guaranteed by Oberdorfer, the druggist.

Washington's Plague Spots

lie in the low, marshy bottoms of the Potomac, the breeding ground of malaria germs. These germs cause chills, fever and ague, biliousness, jaundice, lassitude, weakness and general debility and brings suffering or death to thousands yearly. But Electric Bitters never fail to destroy them and cure malaria troubles. "They are the best all-round tonic and cure for malaria I ever used," writes R. M. James, of Louellen, S. C. They cure Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Blood Troubles and prevent Typhoid. Try them, 50c. Guaranteed by Oberdorfer the druggist.

DIKES IN GERMANY.

They Are Built With Great Care and Exactness.

When a dike is to be built—and they are still in places making dikes—it is first mapped out by the neatly sharpened stakes, a long straight causeway leading out from shore and widening into a rounded head which abuts on the red line of the channel. Then a ground sill or foundation mattress of willows is woven and sunk at this head and pinned down and held in place by the sharpened pegs. Then wattles are woven and sand filled in, and in places rock, and then, rounding up neatly out of the water and forming a tight covering to the whole, the hand squared blocks of stone are laid, as closely as a city pavement, all over the head and back along the neck to the old shore. It is as permanent and stable as the Harvard stadium, the dike so built, and the river, abandoning the space back of the tip to slack water or to be filled in with sand, flows on with entire grace in the restricted channel beyond the tip.

The care and exactness with which these dikes are made would be laughable if it were not so successful. In a land where hand labor is very cheap days are devoted to doing what in America would be roughly cast by machinery in a couple of hours. But the result is so admirable that one remembers regretfully the ugly pile dikes, the horrid fringes of the improved "off channel" banks of the Mississippi.

Where the dikes have accomplished their purpose and generally on the banks opposite to them the river is reverted above middle water. This, too, is done with the hand squared stones, and as a result the Elbe where completely finished resembles a broad canal between stone lined banks, the stone rising a few feet above the water, and above it the green slope of the fields or a fringe of willows. It is all peaceful, complete and generally beautiful, with at least the beauty of utility where it lacks that of ruggedness and wildness.—Boston Transcript.

GILA MONSTER'S BITE.

The Reptile Turns Over to Get Venom Into Its Victim.

It was his turning over habit that led me to the discovery as to the bite of the Gila monster. This creature, more like a short, stocky snake with legs on than anything else, has no poison fangs, like the rattlesnake, yet his bite may be just as dangerous. His poison teeth are in his lower jaw, and the poison comes from a gland under the tongue. If he bites without turning over the wound is not serious, but if he turns over there is great danger. Dr. Snow of the University of Kansas wrote me some time ago of an experience he had with the bite of a Gila monster.

The reptile was caught and put in a bucket, the top of which was covered with paper. The bucket was then put in the wagon in which the doctor was driving. As the road was somewhat rough, the bucket was bounced up and down, and in order to steady it Dr. Snow put his hand behind him and took hold of the bucket, thrusting his fingers through the newspaper cover on its top so that he could hold it secure. Suddenly he felt the monster's grip on his fingers. Startled and somewhat alarmed, he carefully pried the jaws of the reptile open and released himself. The wounds were such as any ordinary bite would have made, and he suffered no more inconvenience than might have been expected.

There are many stories current in Arizona and Sonora as to deaths that have occurred from Gila monsters' bites, but it is hard to get at the facts. Careful experiments made with animals show that when the reptile bites and turns over, so that the poison flows down the tooth grooves into the wound, the bitten creatures die in a short time.—Suburban Life.

A Dead Bird.

Samuel Butler, the witty but eccentric author of "Erewhon," which means "Nowhere," and of many other remarkable and suggestive books, is now more read than during his lifetime. He died in 1902. In one of his notebooks he tells this incident, which must have amused the great Charles Darwin:

"Frank Darwin told me his father was once standing near the hippopotamus cage when a little boy and girl, aged four and five, came up. The hippopotamus shut his eyes for a minute. 'That bird's dead,' said the little girl. 'Come along.'"

Her Lucky Number.

The byways as well as the highways of church life furnish much in the way of wit and humor. What, for instance, could be more mirth provoking than the naive confession of the cook of a London vicar who, being allowed to choose a hymn for the family prayers, was complimented on her choice by the vicar's wife?

"What a nice hymn you chose!" said the latter to the cook.

"Yes, mum; it's the number of my policeman."

Taking an Advantage.

"Your family seem to enjoy going to Europe."

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox. "Mother and the girls have observed that I am weak on getting the value of foreign money. Things are ordered and paid for before I have time to make any intelligent inquiries as to the expense."—Washington Star.

Truthful.

"I hadn't been talking with him three minutes before he called me an ass. What sort of a person is he?"

"Well, I never knew him to tell a lie."

OLD SCHOOL DOCTORS

Ignorance of Physicians of the Eighteenth Century.

TORTURE FOR THE PATIENTS.

Every Ailment Beyond Diagnosis Was Classed as a Fever, and Pills, Plasters, Burning and Bleeding Were the Regulation Remedies.

The proverb "The remedy is worse than the disease" must have been coined in the eighteenth century, when physicians treated their patients with a violence that bordered on assault and battery. It was held that sickness was some kind of a demon that must be overcome by pills, plasters, bleeding and burning, and if the patient incendentally got the full effects of the torture and died, so much the worse for him. Air and water were considered the most dangerous things for a sick person to have, and his misguided demand for them was interpreted as a sign that he should have still less.
The windows were shut and the curtains of the four poster tightly drawn around the recumbent unfortunate gasping for breath. If he burned with fever the blankets were piled on him.
A desire for water meant that he could have none, while a lack of appetite proved that he ought to be stuffed with food. A bath was positively unthinkable.

The deadly results of breathing
"night air" were accentuated by medical writers, says S. G. Tallentyre in the Cornhill Magazine. All air was bad, but the night quality often proved fatal to "young ladies of beauty, fortune and great merit" and to "young gentlemen of parts and breeding." One bold medico recommended that a bedchamber should be ventilated—in the daytime. Another dared to suggest that consumptives might benefit from sleeping in a pure atmosphere. The rule for abutions was "hands often, feet seldom, head never," but a physician far in advance of his age surmised that invalids might bathe their feet in warm water once a week and under extraordinary circumstances take a warm bath once a month.

Overeating and drinking caused many of the diseases of the upper classes. Montesquieu said that dinner killed one half of the Parisians and supper the other half. Everywhere it was the custom to pile the table with roast beef, mutton, capons, boars' heads, pasties, creams, stuffings and mince-meats. A fearful repast of twelve indigestible courses was brought on all together, so that the diners knew what was expected of them. A large breakfast of small beer and meats preceded the gigantic midday meal, when people enjoyed a gargantuan gorge for three hours and spent two more in Falstaff-ian potations. After this the gentlemen joined the women for a dish of tea in the drawing room, and it was not long before the whole party of human anacondas returned to the dining room for a supper on the cold remnants of the dinner. Amid this orgy of gluttony Voltaire and Voltaire were distinguished for an abstinence that prolonged their lives.

Heavy drinking was universal and rarely reprimanded by medical men,
as by Dr. Tronchin. One Dr. Cheyne advised women not to take a whole bottle a day. Another authority wrote a popular treatise in which the best means of attaining longevity was stated to be a bottle of wine at dinner and three glasses after. Those who followed such advice were in danger of being dubbed temperance cranks. A story is told of the celebrated and convivial Dr. Garth, who was tipping bumpers at the Kit-Kat club when reminded that his patients needed attention. "Tis no matter," said Garth, already half seas over, "if I see them or not. Nine have such bad constitutions that all the doctors in the world can't save them, and the other six have such good that all the doctors in the world can't kill them."

A physician named Brown became the pet of fashionable women by always prescribing pleasant remedies,
"a glass of wine in the forenoon from time to time," "several glasses of port or punch after dinner till some enlivening effect is perceived from them." Together with inordinate quantities of liquor and food, Dr. Brown recommended to his male patients the company of "delightful young women." One of the natural consequences of such an agreeable regimen was the gout, for which eighteenth century high livers took seas of liquid medicines, mountains of pills and bins of powders.

Any disease beyond diagnosis was put down as "a fever." Whether typhus or typhoid, scarlet or gastric, non-contagious or violently infectious, anything which caused a rise in temperature was sufficiently described by the term fever. Smallpox, scurvy, spotted and jail fever were maladies distinctive of the age. Disinfection and first aid to natures were never dreamed of,
while the patient was dosed with horrible drafts and nauseating compounds and bled on every possible occasion.
Louis XIV. was bled nine times for scarlet fever. Bleeding killed the Duchess of Tremouille and her husband. When a mob attacked the Duke of Bedford's house in 1705 the doctors remedied the outrage by bleeding the duchess next morning. A young man who fell against a marble table and out his head open was treated by having a few pints of extra blood drawn from his veins by an expert surgeon.
Bleeding was esteemed next to bleeding. A fashionable remedy for consumption was a mash of raw snails, shells and all, taken from a spoon.

THEATRICAL.

"A MAN OF MYSTERY."

A "Man of Mystery," clothed in flowing oriental robes, who reads the thoughts of those about him, and whose vision extends beyond the walls of the home in which he selects to tarry in the disguise of a servant, is the striking central figure of Charles Rand Kennedy's celebrated comedy-drama, "The Servant in the House," which Henry Miller is sending to the Lexington Opera House for a three days' engagement, beginning Monday evening, February fifteenth, with special matinee on Wednesday. This remarkable play has created a sensation in various cities because the critics have called this servant in the house a reincarnation of Christ. The character is treated by the author with such reverence and dignity, however, that the leading clergymen of the country have made the play the text for sermons in their congregations to see the wonderful drama. The play has been praised in the most extravagant terms by the leading critics of the country, and the enthusiasm of critics has been surpassed by that of the theatre-going public. Not even "Ben Hur" has equalled the records for attendance created in various cities this season by "The Servant in the House." The play will be presented in Lexington by Henry Miller's Associate Players, an all-star cast. Creston Clarke, who plays "The Man of Mystery," is a nephew of Edwin Booth and a noted star. Clay Clement who appears as the Dragoon, is another well known star. He will be remembered as the German Baron in "The New Dominion," George W. Wilson, who has the role of the bishop is undoubtedly the most famous character actor in the country. He was the original king in "If I Were a King," and last year played Colonel Starbottle in "Salome Jane." Mr. Wilson has starred at the head of his own company in the Eastern states. Lizzie Hudson Collier will be remembered as W. H. Crane's leading woman in "The Senator" and leading woman for Otis Skinner in "The Harvester." She has played leading roles for Henry Miller, Nat Goodwin, Maude Adams, Joseph Jefferson, the elder, and other famous American stars. Wilfred Rogers, Gladys Wynne and Henry Dorton, who complete the cast, are all noted players. Lexington is the only city in Kentucky, besides Louisville, to see "The Servant in the House" this season. The extended Lexington engagement is arranged especially for the accommodation of theatre-goers in near-by cities. Mail orders addressed to the management of the Lexington Opera House will receive special consideration, and will be filled in the order of their receipt when accompanied by remittance.

"THE WOLF" TONIGHT.

"The Wolf," which will be the offering at the Paris Grand tonight under the direction of Sam S. and Lee Shubert, tells a story that is said to be intensely interesting to men and women, both young and old, particularly to women. It shows that man must not be blindly trusted, that a girl must use her head as well as her heart, and that all the pretty things in the world cannot take the place of the greatest of all things—love.

The Springfield (O.) Daily Leader in part says:

"The Wolf" is a flesh-and-blood drama, tingling with human emotion, and might be termed a beautiful idyll of the Canadian wilkes. It is not a hackneyed story of the familiar type, but a romance set in a golden dramatic frame."

Each member of the company is highly complimented by the critic on this paper and each member of the cast stand out prominently and from the fact that the four companies now touring America are adding fresh laurel to the Shuberts should be sufficient to insure a large audience at the Grand tonight.

TRAGIC AUTOMOBILE RACING.

—We may read in newspapers what goes on in every corner of the globe, but at Lyman H. Howe's Life Drama seen at the Paris Grand on Friday, Feb. 12, the spectators actually can see what goes on. The new program chronicles in pictures the facts and events of last month—last week of yesterday. For instance it illustrates the last Grand Prix automobile race at Dieppe—probably the last the French Government will ever permit. The fatalities, the maddening speed of cars hurtling themselves around the most dangerous curves, the dare-devilry of drivers playing momentarily with death, make this feature of the new program one of breathless interest. It is spectacular in the extreme. With cars skidding at all angles, overturning, crashing through fences, or shooting past the camera with the speed of an arrow, the picture can be relied on for all the "thrills" it implies. The scenes are unprecedented in the history of racing of any kind. No sporting event anywhere ever attracted such enormous crowds. They lined the entire course for miles and paid farmers five to ten francs for standing room privilege in open fields. Splendid close facial portraits—taken just before the race—are also shown of Cissac, driver of the Panhard and Schaub his mechanic, who both met such a tragic fate on the last round of the race when the tire was ripped off and the machine turned turtle.

Johnston has been notified that horses will be in readiness for the soldiers and such of the escort of the President as desire to ride.

A Grand Success.

The first annual banquet given by the Paris Commercial Club at Crosdale's Cafe last evening was a grand success in every sense of the word. President Wm. O. Hinton made an ideal toastmaster and was very happy in his remarks introducing the various orators of the evening.

Toasts were responded to by the following gentlemen: "Co-operation," Hon. C. M. Thomas; "Taxation," Prof. J. W. Porter, Lexington; "Development of the Bluegrass," J. R. Bush Lexington; "Beneficial industries and How to Get Them," Geo. B. Harper, Frankfort; "Boosting vs. Knocking," Hon. Bev. Jozett, Winchester; "How We Made the Frankfort Commercial Club a Success," John H. Caswell, Frankfort; "Baseball in the Bluegrass," Geo. Hammond, Lexington; W. R. Thomas, Winchester.

The toasts were interspersed with selections by the "Chippewa Club" and "The Philharmonic Quartette." Eloquence, wit, good old-fashioned common sense and enchanting music and full song and the first annual banquet of the Paris Commercial Club will be remembered as one of the most interesting and enjoyable events in the history of our town.

Cold Wave.

A cold wave is coming this way fast and is due here today. The only ones that will rejoice at this news are the plumber and coal man.

Wills Probated.

The will of the late Mrs. Ellen G. Holt was probated Saturday in the County Court. In consideration of the fact that he son, J. Harry Holt, had for many years managed her farm and other real estate without compensation and in consideration of his kind and generous treatment of the testatrix leaves to him all of her real estate. To her daughter, Miss Bettie Holt, she leaves her personal property, consisting of household furniture, silverware and bric-a-brac.

The will of the late Mrs. Susan A. Hamilton was also probated Saturday. After providing for the payment of any just debts and funeral expenses she leaves out of the proceeds of money on hand and life insurance $200 to her daughter, Mrs. Mary Proctor. She names the husband as executor of the estate. He is to manage her farm in Nicholas county and home in Millersburg. Her daughter, Mrs. Proctor, is permitted under the will to occupy her Millersburg residence as long as she lives, paying an annual rental of $75, the proceeds to go to her grandson, William Hamilton Cooper. If her daughter and grandson die without issue the property to all kinds is to revert to the heirs of her brothers and sisters.

MR. J. H. GRAHAM, OF FRANKFORT

Writes Letter Which May Be of Great Interest to Skin Sufferers in this City.

"My twelve-year-old daughter had been suffering with an aggravated form of Eczema for more than two years. We had her under the care of the best physicians here. Upon getting no relief, we were induced to try D. D. D. Prescription.

"She was entirely relieved. It has now been more than one year since she ceased to use the Remedy, and no sign of the trouble has appeared. I feel very grateful."

What D. D. D. did in this case it ought to do for you. This wonderful remedy is now recognized by the foremost physicians and scientists as the quickest and surest cure for Eczema and skin disease of any nature. This remedy is as safe and pleasant to use as pure water, and is applied directly to the afflicted parts, leaving no bad odor or sticky, salvy substance. The first application gives INSTANT RELIEF, and as far as we have been able to investigate quickly effects the most astonishing and permanent cures where ever rightly used.

The Big Paris Conference.

The Eastern and Central Kentucky Conference that is to be held in Paris on March 12-14 will be somewhat of a departure from that of former gatherings. Instead of limiting the subjects and themes to Association questions, the programme will also deal with all forms of masculine Christian effort—Men's Church Clubs, Brotherhoods, Laymen's Missionary Movement, Men's Bible Classes, etc. Experts in these various forms of work have already been invited to be present. Business and professional men are leaving their work for days at a time to attend conventions dealing with their own work. It is not too much to expect that a large number of men will make a sacrifice of time and money and attend the Paris convention in the interest of that larger work—the betterment of the men and boys of Kentucky. The members of the local committees for this Conference are expected to meet tonight in the lecture room of the Second Presbyterian church to consult with State Secretary P. C. Dix, who will be present.
